Effortlessly Chic in Silk and Satin

The easiest way to elevate your look is to sleek it back.

BY CHLOE STRAND

APRIL 10, 2022

We loved the layered look all fall and winter, but it's getting hotter and the looks are getting even cooler. Silk and satin are giving us all the 'model off duty,' mixed with 'effortless cool-girl,' vibes for any occasion.

Spotted on and off the runway, the revival of satin is arriving just in time for spring and summer escapades. Fashion is inherently cyclical; decades come and go- along with the comments about who really wore it first. This 1970's revival of silk and satin pieces can be incorporated into nearly every atmosphere. From brunch to formals, a simple cut in satin is sure to make more of a statement than layers of glitter and tulle. Slipping into this simple, elegant look elevates any tiny tank or gown.

MARQUES ALMEIDA SPRING/SUMMER 2022

Gucci and Marques Almeida are amongst the plethora of designers giving their ode to the seventies. Suited in silk Gucci proves that a look surrounded by one fabric no longer just belongs to the Canadian tuxedo. Experimenting with cuts and colors in this line, Gucci demonstrates how truly multidimensional satin is, and can be incorporated into many elements of life. Almeida swept through fashion week with floor-length silk gowns, several of them being strapless- concentrating their emphasis on the natural fall of the fabric and its accents to the model's natural features.

But why trust the runway when you could trust the red carpet? On Justin Bieber's arm at the 2022 Grammy Awards, Hailey Bieber stunned in a strapless, silk, Saint Laurent gown that was adjacent to the ones shown by Almeida. The stunning shade of pearl caught the light from her shoulders to the edge of the red carpet. Zendaya's tiny top of her two-piece Oscars set, was in the same shade of pearl silk featuring a unique collared décolletage, and opted to ditch the bottom half of her sleeves and torso.

If you haven't tuned into TikTok lately, you're missing the obsession of THE Zara dress. With dainty straps, this midi length satin gown is a perfect pastel pink that will last through late summer. For less formal occasions, opting out your usual basics for one in the fabric satin, will instantly elevate and tie together a look. From tiny tanks, skirts, mini dresses, and pants- satin can be worn from head to toe, or layered with other fabrics. Showpo, Zara, Abercrombie, and Princess Polly are embracing the new obsession with this classic seventies fabric.

Spring and summer are calling for this sleek look, you better pick up the phone.
